POMONA GRANGE MET

Was in Session With Ondawa Grange at Big Pond.

DETAILS OF THE WORK DONE.

Grange Takes Action on Law in Regard to Rebate on Timber Lands. Equalization of Taxation Demanded From Representatives.

Pomona Grange No. 23 of Bradford and Sullivan counties met with Ondawa Grange No. 174 at Big Pond, August 18 and 19.

An unusually large unmber of patrons and matrons attended the sessions, which were held in the M. E. church. The meeting was a busy one and a general feeling of good fellowship prevailed throughout.

Thursday Morning.

The meeting was called to order and opened in ritual form by Worthy Master Myrt Ferguson, until the arrival of the secretary, Rev. Ebert of Liberty corners entertained the assembly with well chosen remarks.

The minutes of the last meeting held at Wysox were read approved, when dinner was announced. Before adjournment the Master announced the following committees. Resolutions—C. P. Shaw, Columbia Grange; A. S. Blackwell, Troy; Hon. L. T. Manley, Keystone; A. T. Lilley, Open Hand; Sister Alger, Columbia; Sister Beardsley, Smithfield. Applications—Brother and Sister S. C. Moore, Columbia; Brother and Sister Weed, Laurel Hill; Sister Caroline Lent, Wyalusing; Sister B. T. Weller, Union.

Thursday Afternoon.

Meeting called to order at 1:30. After a song by the choir, the reports of subordinate granges was read. Twenty-three of the 29 granges in the pomona district were reported; these show net increase of 144 members during the last quarter.

An address of welcome was extended to the visitors by Brother W. E. Soper, Master of Ondawa Grange; response by Brother E. J. Kingsley of Columbia Grange. Song by Columbia Quartette "Where you see the Grangers Stand." Recitation by Miss Mary Grace.

The subject of the proposed change in by-laws of the Grangers' Mutual Fire Insurance Company was introduced; discussion opened by Brother C. L. Crandall of Keystone Grange, followed by many others; an expression of the house showed a desire of a majority of the policy holders present, to insure live stock against loss by lightning anywhere within the jurisdiction of the company. An amusing recitation by Miss Edna Dubert followed.

Brother A. T. Lilley, chairman of Pomona Legislative Committee for Bradford county, then gave a report of his work. This is a branch of grange work which, when properly conducted, will result in great practical good to the farmer. After a lengthy discussion of the report, the following resolution was offered and adopted.

"Resolved, that we favor the simplification of the law concerning the rebate on timber land by having the rebate made by the assessors when taking the assessment."

Recitations by Dudley Lewis, Nellie Packard and Cora Dunbar were all rendered in an excellent manner.

Questions in regard to Fire Insurance referred to and answered by A. S. Stevens.

"Will it pay a farmer to buy a spraying outfit for less than an acre of potatoes:" A field of potatoes sprinkled with a mixture of Paris green, wood ashes and salt, was not affected with blight; destroying potato vines in the fall tends to prevent the disease.

After a duet by Brother and Sister Moore of Columbia Grange, which was highly appreciated, the meeting adjourned to meet in the fifth degree session.

Evening Session.

Opened in the church at 7:30, with a quartette by Columbia choir "Get aboard the Granger Ship."

Prayer was offered by Rev. W. C. B. Turner.

"A political speech by Moses Tubbs, Esq.," was given in a dramatic manner by Brother E. C. Grace of Ondawa Grange.

Rev. D. J. Ebert was next on the program and was listened to attentively. Brother Ebert is a former pastor of the Big Pond church and was heartily greeted by his former associates; he is also a granger and added many to his list of friends from among the visiting patrons.

Brother Ebert considers it an honor to be a granger. In his talk he said "all love happiness and prosperity," happiness is the acme of all earthly striving. Eternal happiness through the church, present happiness through social and fraternal relations.

Prosperity of the farmer depends upon favorable harvests among many other conditions one of which is the right use of liberty but liberty is not a license.

Through the grange an attempt is made to teach the untaught and encourage the discouraged.

The farm and country the place of greatest morality, least insanity and least in crime.

Ours is the greatest and best country on earth.

Duet by Bailey sisters "O Speak Kindly" was encored and they responded with "The tune the old cow died on."

Sister Grace Packard recited in her usual happy manner "The Prince."

After a song by Brother Cunningham and a recitation by Miss Edna Dubert Misses Addie Fanning and Cora Shoemaker sang a beautiful sacred duet entitled "Come, Holy Spirit, Heavenly Dove."

Rev. W. S. H. Heermans of Towanda was introduced and held the close attention of the audience for a time. He said the first sixteen years of his life were spent on a farm and while a pastor in Towanda to teach his boys farming, planted 44 acres of $3.25 beans and raised beans worth only $1.35.

To be successful in farming we must be rid of weeds in order to produce good crops; both cannot occupy the ground at the same time. The weeds which represent the evil in our natures must be eradicated before we can be truly successful.

The country supplies life of cities. You have the best life in the world but it needs perfecting.

The principles which will lead to success in farming, success in government, will produce magnificent citizenship, which cannot be bought or sold.

After a song by the choir the meeting adjourned until 9:30 in the morning.

Friday Morning.

Opened in full form with song by the choir.

Committee on resolutions give the following report:

Whereas, The farmer is bearing more than his share of taxation, and that many corporations are not taxed at all, be it

Resolved, That we continue to ask the Senators and Representatives who shall be elected at the next election, to use all honorable means for the passage of an act which shall equalize the taxes on all properties, from the farmer on the hillside to the millionaire in the city.

ANOTHER DIVORCE.

Carrie E. Utter Secured Award From Her Husband.

Carrie E. Utter, of Sayre, has just been granted a divorce from her husband, Wilfred M. Utter. The parties were married at Wilkesbarre on Oct. 28, 1884. Mrs. Utter's maiden name was Hubbell. They lived together until June 15, 1902, when they seperated, then they lived together for a short time, a reconciliation having been effected. The wife alleges that the husband began to ill treat her ten years after they were married, in 1894, and that it continued until they separated.

Mrs. Utter alleges that the husband used bad and threatening language against her and that he had thrown a lighted lamp at her and also a pair of shears. He was also accustomed to threatening to commit suicide and locking himself up in rooms for a long period, causing the wife great distress in mind. The master in divorce recommended a divorce on the ground of incompatability of temperament.

Narrow Escape.

A sail boat containing Miss Miriam Ott, daughter of Dr. C. H. Ott of Sayre and her guest Miss Fristler of Allentown and E. S. Worthington and J. Norman Worthington, capsized on the Susquehanna river and but for the presence of J. J. Lewis, the ferryman, one or more of them would undoubtedly have drowned.

MURDER AT DUSHORE

Frank Yanney Charged with Killing Jacob Eppler With Gun.

IS NOW IN JAIL AT LAPORTE.

Quarrelled All Day Over Woman at Harvey's Lake and Then at Dushore Sunday Evening Yanney Is Alleged to Have Fired Fatal Sot.

Frank Yanney is in jail at Laporte on the charge of murder for the shooting of Jacob Eppler at Dushore on Sunday night. Eppler died from the wound at the home of his brother-in-law near Dushore Monday morning at 9 o'clock. Yanney was arrested soon after the shooting and was taken Sunday night to the Laporte jail where he was committed without bail.

Woman in the Case.

The old French saying "Look for the woman," was true in this latest case of taking a man's life. Some eight or nine years ago Samuel Eppler of Forks township married a girl by the name of Gertrude Stahl. Frank Yanney came between the pair and Eppler, who is an own brother of the man who was shot secured a divorce from her. Afterwards the couple became reconciled and were married again. Yanney, according to common report, again came between them and Mr. and Mrs. Epler separated. The woman has been living as housekeeper with several men at different times. Of late she has been living with Yanney by whom she was the mother of a ten months' old child.

At Harvey's Lake.

Sunday morning Yanney and the woman went on the excursion to Harvey's Lake. Sam Eppler and his brother, Jacob Eppler, also went. It is reported that the Epplers and Yanney quarrelled all day at the lake and kept it up on the train home. It was finally decided to have it out at Dushore. The party got off the train at the station and after they had gone a little ways the woman is said to have told the men:

"If you're going to fight it out now's your chance."

Several Shots Fired.

At that the men pulled off their coats and started for each other. Then several revolver shots were heard in quick succession and when the smoke had cleared away Jacob Eppler was found on the ground seriously injured, a ball having penetrated low in the abdomen, while the woman had been shot in the thigh. Both were removed to houses and looked after by physicians. Yanney was arrested and taken before Justice Bohn who committed him to the county jail at Laporte without bail. The affair caused intense excitement at Dushore.

Killed the Wrong Man.

On the way to jail Yanney is reported to have admitted the shooting but claims that he intended to shoot the other brother, Sam, the husband of his housekeeper. Jacob is said to have acted in the role as a peacemaker between the enraged men. When arrested Yanney was seated on the ground by the side of the woman whom he had accidentally shot, waiting for a physician. Eppler had started to walk to town and was picked up along the side of the road where he had fallen unconscious from the effects of the bullet wound.

Postmortem Held.

Coroner McHenry of Sullivan county empannelled a jury in the Eppler murder case Monday and held a postmortem. The bullet which struck Eppler had entered the left side of the abdomen, ranged across the abdominal cavity, struck the right hip bone and glanced back toward the left side, completely riddling the entrails. The jury has adjourned until Thursday evening.

Ahwaga Hose Pleased.

Ahwaga Hose Co. No. 6, of this village, attended the parade of the Five County Firemen's association in Towanda, Pa., on Friday last. They were accompanied by the Curran-Heim band of Binghamton. They were the guests of Linta Hose and were very hospitably treated, and returned to Owego with the kindest feelings for the Towanda firemen and the members of Linta Hose in particular.—Owego Times.

More Light Needed.

The work of the pickpockets at Washington street station on Friday night calls to the attention the fact that the station is a dark place on any night and that the railroad company or the town council should place additional lights there for the accommodation of the public.

Station Burglarized.

The Lehigh Valley station at Standing Stone was burglarized on Thursday night. The station was locked during the night but the burglar broke the lock on the door and gained an entrance. Nothing of value was taken. There are no clues as to the perpetrator of the deed.

BERNICE MINERS PRESENTED GRIEVANCES AT NEW YORK.

Claimed That They Should Receive the Ten Per Cent Increase.

The board of conciliation of the Anthracite Strike commission met at New York on Aug. 23 at the offices of the Lehigh Coal company. There were present W. L. Connell, of Scranton, chairman of the board; S. D. Warriner, of the Lehigh Coal company, representing the operators, and District Presidents Nichols, Dettrey and Fahy, representing the mine workers. Carrol D. Wright, the umpire of the board, was also present to receive three grievances of the mine workers which the board of conciliation could not agree upon.

The miners employed by the Northern Anthracite company in the Bernice fields submitted a grievance to the board, claiming that the company has not paid the ten per cent increase awarded by the strike commission. The operators claim that the mine in question is not an anthracite mine, that the coal does not bring the price of $4.50 per ton at tidewater and that while entitled to other increases granted to the miners, they were not entitled to the sliding scale increase of ten percent. The miners argue against this that the Northern Anthracite Coal company submitted to the decision of the strike commission, and that the value of the coal did not enter into the consideration of the matter.

Mr. Wright asked the miners' representatives on what basis they made the claim for an increase if the tidewater price of coal was not $4.50: Mr. Nichols replied that the commission's decision did not provide for any such price being essential.

Will Accept Wright's Decision.

Mr. Warriner pointed out that the decision specifically stated that the sliding scale increase was to be on a percentage based on the price over $4.50 per ton at tidewater. The Bernice product has never realized that sum.

The chairman said that the award of the commission was vaguely worded and rendered the case a difficult one to decide. He said he would take the matter under advisement.

On the motion of Mr. Nichols, the board agreed to submit unconditionally to the decision of the umpire on three grievances submitted.

CEMENT AND STONE BRIDGES.

Judge Fanning Believes in Building Permanent Structures.

Judge Fanning in explaining to the grand jury the law relative to county bridges in the course of his remarks stated that he believed the time had arrived when in the interest of tax payers the construction of cement and stone bridges, where narrow streams are to be crossed, should receive earnest consideration. That there are many reasons which could be urged in favor of such bridges requirng but one or two arches or openings, among them the following; that properly constructed they would last for an almost indefinite length of time; the use of plank flooring necessarily frequently replaced and every day becoming scarce and more valuable would be dispensed with; the expense of painting every few years at no small cost would be saved; the money paid out for labor and material would largely benefit our own people; the frequency of accidents by reason of broken or misplaced plank would be diminished, and that bridges of this kind in various portions of the country had proven satisfactory.

It was stated that the first cost of the bridge might equal and perhaps slightly exceed that of an iron one, but in the long run would be found more durable and less expensive.

NORTH TOWANDA BRIDGE APPROVED BY GRAND JURY.

Needed Outlet to the Northeastern Section of the County Assured.

The grand jury Thursday afternoon reported favorably upon the petition for a county bridge across the Susquehanna river at North Towanda, best known as the James street bridge. The proposed site of the structure is from the foot of James street in North Towanda township to a point on the East shore of the river just South and near the dividing line between Sheshequin and Wysox townships. When built this bridge will give a much needed means of communication between the county seat and a large section of the county, and will do away with the necessity for traveling the dangerous narrows across the river from Towanda.

The jury also reported favorably on a county bridge across Rumerfield creek in Standing Stone township; one across the Sugar creek in Troy township at Dillin's mill, and one across the Towanda creek at Woodruff's crossing in LeRoy township.

The Wealthy apple makes a cider vinegar of the very highest quality.

A windmill on a sixty or eighty foot tower is a transient farm fixture at best.

A rainfall of four inches in twenty-four hours is considered quite extraordinary in this country, but Manila had a rainfall of seventeen inches in that time recently.

The reclamation of waste land by irrigation projects and the building of the Panama canal will be the two distinguishing features of the coming decade in this country.

Yes, you can afford to pay 7 per cent interest to get the money necessary to build a silo, and if you are in the dairy business you will find it the best investment you ever made.

Late press dispatches state that timber to the value of $20,000,000 has been lately destroyed by forest fires in Newfoundland. The fire and the ax are fast finishing up the forests of the continent.

The best investment we make each year is the 25 cents we put into a flat file used to keep all earth working tools as sharp as a knife. No money invested brings so large a return.

The first crop of alfalfa, usually ready to cut in June, is a hard crop to put into hay, as the weather will not permit of the curing. A friend gets over this trouble by dumping the first crop into the silo and says it works well.

Western Canada, the finest wheat growing section of America, is coming to the front this year with 80,000,000 bushels of No. 1 hard wheat. This amount can very easily be increased to 400,000,000 bushels and will be if the price of this cereal will justify its production.

Electrical power is now being delivered and sold in Pacific coast cities for less money than the power could be generated by steam, even if the fuel for the furnaces was laid down free of cost. The snow on the mountains is being made to do the world's work on the plains below.

Potatoes are and should be the poor man's daily ration, but when they soar around the dollar and dollar and a half mark, as they have for the past two years, they become the rich man's luxury. A dollar is too much for the tubers; 75 cents is too much. Forty cents at retail is a fair living price.

A neighbor has lately been using dynamite very successfully in connection with the removal of a lot of large stumps. A hole bored to the center of the stump and a charge of dynamite inserted result in the splitting up and dismemberment of a stump so it is easily pulled out with a stump puller.

It may be said to the credit of agriculture as a regular business that strikes, lockouts, walking delegates, dynamite and bloodshed do not and probably never can touch the farm. If the farm help should unionize and strike, the farmers would just let the men go, and the farm work would be shaped to such an amount as the man and his folks could attend to.

There are three noxious weeds which are gaining an alarming foothold among the best agricultural sections of the west—red sorrel, quack grass and wild barley. We know of one eighty acre field of oats which the quack grass fairly swamped and almost ruined, of many a pasture where red sorrel and wild barley are surely killing out all other types of grass life.

It is not just clear why it should be so, but a man who has repeatedly tried it tells us that if the seed crop of red clover is plowed under, the land planted to corn the next season and oats or barley to follow the corn, there will be almost invariably a fine stand of clover among the small grain crop. This is a rather narrow system of rotation, but if it were followed up the fertility of the soil would be immensely increased. We would give it a trial.

For the first time the Arkansas Elberta peach has been a standard commodity in all western cities. And such peaches! No southern fruit has ever compared with them in size, beauty or flavor. And money in growing 'em, too, 100 acres set with them in Van Buren county three years ago making the owner almost a fortune this year on land which only cost him $1,000. The finest peaches of California hardly equal these from Arkansas.

That farmer who can spend ten days at the St. Louis fair just learning what he may of things pertaining exclusively to his business—dairy, stock, cereals, fruit, irrigation, soil physics, machinery—will never regret his work. We know of no other way in which a man could acquire so much really valuable information of a practical sort, and this fine opportunity can be enjoyed for the value of one good steer or the product of three acres of corn.

FOUR SAFE APPLES.

Practical experience with growing apples in the northwest for twenty years has taught us some lessons—lessons costing much time and money and many a disappointment. All told we have experimented with some twenty-five varieties of apple, and the list we could recommend for a commercial orchard is as a result a very small one. The qualities we have sought for have been hardiness, productiveness and salability. We have found many good apples, apparently hardy, which produced so little fruit that for all practical purposes they were worthless; others productive enough, but not hardy enough to stand the test of winters and summers of the northwest territory. We say test of summers, for we believe that as many apple trees are done for in the summer as the winter. The few varieties which fill the bill, which are hardy, bear well and sell well, are the Duchess, a short lived summer apple; the Wealthy, a fruit of the highest degree of quality, very productive and reasonably hardy, a fall apple keeping till December and specially suited to cold storage; then we rate Patten's Greening as a most valuable apple, hardy as an oak, a producer of large and very handsome fruit, specially suited for cooking, very productive and a good seller. With us it has been scab proof without spraying. This is a fall fruit and not a long keeper. The fourth and last on the list is the Northwestern Greening, an apple which is making a splendid record for itself, a strictly winter fruit, keeping under ordinary cellar conditions until May. While not of the highest quality it is vastly superior to the Ben Davis and bids fair to be the coming winter apple for the territory referred to. There are several others which we would plant in a family orchard, but not in the commercial orchard, such as Longfield, Antanovka, No. 20 and others. The four apples named, however, are a quartet to tie to where one is in doubt. Plant these in the orchard and then experiment all you want to. The tree man may tell another story, but we have given the result of twenty years' experience in an effort to raise apples in a practical way.

About as soon as a fellow begins to feel rheumatic he had better begin to spend his money rather than keep on working to make his pile bigger for his heirs to quarrel over.

An addition of twenty feet in height is to be made to the great Assouan dam on the river Nile, in Egypt, which will bring under irrigation 2,000,000 additional acres of desert land.

We are growing a tomato this year which we like. It makes but a scant foliage—does not want to climb over the fence and into the next lot—sets its fruit early and plenty of it, furnishing tomatoes by the first week in July. It is named the Earliana and deserves a place in every garden.

The tender grass from the lawn mowing makes a very nice supplemental feed for the milk cow. Having quite a large lawn to care for, we have been cutting a strip every night and feeding the cuttings to the cows, which they eagerly eat, though having the run of a good pasture.

There are some queer things about animal food and man's taste therefor. Here is the horse, one of the most cleanly of animals in both his food and his habits, and man gags on eating him; then there are the hen and the hog, the filthiest of slum scavengers, which man rates as among his most delicate and delicious rations.

We came across one of those old fashioned flower gardens the other day where four o'clock, Sweet William, mignonette, balsam, coreopsis, marigold, hollyhock and all the rest of the old standbys were giving a riot of color and perfume which put one in mind of grandmother's garden of fifty years ago—no asters, salvias, cannas and all the new fashioned sort. It looked good.

During a trip of 500 miles through the most productive and best portion of the west which we made recently, while we saw no end of cornfields, oat fields, large herds of stock and innumerable hogs, we saw not a dozen orchards and only two strawberry beds. It is somehow easier for most farmers to raise a Poland-China hog than a box of strawberries, and so they raise the hogs.

The people hungry and wanting to buy meat, the packers ready and wanting to kill and sell them the meat, the farmer with the critters all ready for the market, the railways all ready to distribute the stock and the meats, were all held up lately because the men who form the scavenger brigade at the stockyards wanted 18 instead of 17 cents for an hour's work. Such tomfoolery could not occur in a really civilized country.

We have frequently referred to the development of the cement block industry. It is little short of marvelous how this interest is growing. Within six months scores of towns in the west, and small towns at that, have started factories for the manufacture of these blocks, and sightly and handsome buildings are being erected of them. Given a supply of good sharp sand and railway facilities and the question of building material is settled and settled with a durable fireproof material less costly than either brick or stone. The cement block house and barn are coming in the near future to supersede the present wooden structures on the farm.

FIRST GUN FOR TEDDY

Republican Clubmen Open National Campaign in the State.

FORM FIRST VOTERS CLUBS.

Great Preparations Are Being Made For the Convention of the State League, Which Is to Be Held at Reading.

Reading, August 30.

The opening gun of the Republican campaign in this state is to be fired in Reading at the convention of the State League of Republican Clubs, which will be held on September 20 and 21.

While the Union League and the Manufacturers' Club of Philadelphia both sought to have the credit of opening the state campaign, Chairman Penrose, of the Republican state committee, decided that the active young Republicans of Pennsylvania, who constitute the membership of the various clubs which compose the Republican League, should be allowed the opportunity of holding the initial meeting under the auspices of the state organization in favor of Roosevelt and Fairbanks.

Roosevelt, he argued, is an especial favorite of the Young Republicans of the country and the clubmen of the Keystone state who have taken a lively interest in his candidacy should be allowed to lead the fighting for the national ticket in the present contest.

The officers and members of the State League fully appreciate the honor which has been conferred upon their organization, and they propose to make their convention next month one of the most notable in the history of the league. John R. Wiggins, president of the State League, and John Kelly, the secretary, both of Philadelphia, and the other officers of the league are co-operating with the committee of Berks county Republicans who are mapping out the program for the convention, the mass meeting and the various features for the entertainment of the delegates and alternates and other visitors who will be in Reading during the convention week.

Prominent Republicans from almost every county in the state have signified their intention of being present, and it is expected that there will be some splendid oratory both in the convention and at the mass meeting, in support of the national ticket and in arraignment of the Democracy.

Patriotism and aggressive Republicanism will be the order of the day and the campaign in this commonwealth for the election of Roosevelt and Fairbanks will certainly be opened under the most favorable auspices.

The State League of Republican Clubs will plan to hold meetings in every county in the state before election day. Where no Republican club now exists a determined effort will be made to organize one before the campaign shall be well under way.

Where there is a lacking of interest in clubs now on the rolls of the League, organizers will be sent to see that enthusiasm is once more stirred up among the members, and that they are gotten into line without delay.

One of the features of the convention will be the efforts that will be made to enlist the first voters of the state to support the national Republican candidates and the entire party ticket at the coming election.

First Voters' clubs will be formed wherever ten or more young men about to cast their votes for the first time can be got together. They will be instructed in the method of marking their ballots and urged to attend Republican meetings during the progress of the campaign. They will be pressed into service to aid the Republican county committeemen in their respective districts, and will be invited to help in the work of getting doubtful or apathetic voters to the polls. The fact will be impressed upon such young men that many of the most famous statesmen and party men in the history of American politics began their political careers as members of small political clubs or as county committeemen, or simply as helpers at the polls on election day.

Efforts will be made to educate the first voters to a knowledge of the fact that a citizen of this Union can perform no more valuable service to his country than to encourage his neighbors and fellow-townsmen to exercise the right of franchise at every election, and to have them study the great questions which confront the statesmen and the lawmakers of the country and which divide the great political parties.

Officers of the State League state that in the present campaign Republicans are eager for a full discussion of every issue that has been raised or is likely to be raised in the pending canvass, and they wish the clubmen throughout the Keystone state to be prepared to meet their opponents whenever occasion shall present.

Arrangements will be made at the coming convention to have documents delivered promptly at the headquarters of the several clubs during the campaign, so that the members shall have a chance to book themselves on all issues.

A list of clubmen who will be available for work on the stump will be prepared, and their services will be placed at the disposal of the chairman of the state committee. During Chairman Penrose's absence in the west, President John R. Wiggins had frequent conferences with Secretary Andrews at the state headquarters and kept him posted regarding the work in hand.

GEROULD FAMILY REUNION HELD AT SMITHFIELD.

Notable Gathering of a Notable Family Was Largely Attended.

The seventh quinquenial reunion of the Gerould family was held in the old Phelp's Grove at East Smithfield, Pa., Aug. 25, 1904. Over 200 members of the family were registered, representing four generations. They came from far and near to spend the day in joyful renewing of old acquaintance and in the happy discovering of unknown kin.

Among those from out of the county were Mrs. Henry Gerould and Miss Effie Gerould of Cleveland Ohio, Mrs. Abijah Gerould of Warren, Pa., H. M. Gerould of Greenwood, Ill., Mr. and Mrs. Otis Gerould of Covington, Pa. Rev. and Mrs. Joel Hendrick, Montour Falls, N. Y., Prof. Welland Hendrich and family and Mrs. Carrie McKibbins and children of New York, Prof. and Mrs. O. C. Dorney of Allentown, Pa., Mrs. Laura G. Craig and daughter of Buffalo, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Bloom of Wellsboro, Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Blackman of Lestershire, Mrs. Burton P. Gerould of Bath, Mrs. Eveline Bullock, and Gerald Bullock, Mrs. Endell Campbell and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Campbell, A. S. Campbell, John Durfey and family, Mrs. Gertrude Joralemon of Elmira, Mrs. B. M. Green and Mrs. Marie Gerould of Bushville, N. Y., Merritt Flick of Elinsport, Pa., Fred Gerould, Trenton, N. J., Mrs. Guy Bosworth and children of Nichols.

The early part of the day was spent in greetings, registering and partaking of the usual bountiful Gerould dinner.

Beginning about 2 o'clock the program, in spite of a rather stiff breeze, was successfully carried out. The president, Clayton Gerould, presided. The opening song was "Coronation," in which all joined after which the Rev. Joel Hendrick led in prayer.

The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Miss Grace O. Gerould. Then followed timely remarks by the president, the address of welcome by Rev. Geo. Ballentine, and the response by Prof. Welland Hendrick of New York city.

Letters of greeting were read by the secretary from Dr. S. L. Gerould of Hollis, N. H., Dr. J. E. Gerould of Kansas City, Mo., and others. The company then listened to a chorus, "The Songs My Father Sang."

Mrs. Julia C. Gerould, wife of Dr. H. Gerould of Cleveland, then gave a most interesting talk, including the history of the establishment of the Gerould Memorial Mission station at Rath, India. At the close of her address Mrs. Laura Gerould Craig presented with forceful and pleasing remarks the following resolutions which were heartily adopted.

In appreciation of the services, Dr. Henry Gerould in his life time gave to perpetuate the Gerould family name and history, and of the honor conferred upon the name by his founding of "Gerould Cottage" for missionary students at Hiram College, and in appreciation of the one with him in the missionary spirit, and of their many friends who have assisted her in establishing to his memory and under the name Gerould, of a Mission station in India, be it

Resolved, That we hereby express our thanks to the Father of all families of earth that He has permitted these our kinsmen after the flesh and the spirit to enter into such noble partnership with Him for the salvation of men; and added thanks to Mrs. Gerould for bringing to us the story of the establishment of the memorial station and inauguration of Missionary work therein.

Resolved, That an offering be taken at this reunion to place in the Gerould Mission station at Rath, India, to the memory of Dr. Gerould and under the name of the Gerould family, some perpetual testimony of this appreciation, and that those not present be invited to participate in the offering, which shall be invested by Mrs. Gerould as she believes will best and with greatest permanence serve the work of the Gerould station.

Resolved, That Mrs. Gerould be requested to report the result to the family historian to the missionary Tidings, and to the next Gerould reunion.

Resolved, That these resolutions be embodied in the reunion reports and that we accept with thanks the offer of Prof. O. C. Dorney to emboss these resolutions for presentation in Album form to Mrs. Gerould.

Next came the historian's report by Miss Flora E. Gerould. Following the resolutions presented by the memorial committee a quartette, "The Flower Land," by Thompson, was rendered by Miss Grace Gerould, Mrs. Laura Gerould Craig, Martin Gerould and Truman Gerould.

The following officers were elected for the reunion of 1909: President, Clayton Gerould; vice president, Walter Rice; secretary, Mary Ballentine; treasurer, Ed. Gerould.

Executive committee Orpheus Sumner Lincoln Garett, Joel Harris.

Two verses of "God Be With You 'til we meet again," were then sung and the seventh reunion of the Gerould family was closed with a benediction by Rev. Geo. Ballentine.

JAPS RENEW BATTLE

Scientifically Shell Russian Camp at Liaoyang.

GENERAL ADVANCE FOLLOWS

Fierce Fighting All Along the Line. Russians Suffer Heavily, but Stick to Their Positions—One Regiment Repels Charge at Bayonet's Point.

Liaoyang, Aug. 30.—What appears likely to prove the decisive battle of the war is now raging about Liaoyang. Nearly half a million men are engaged, and the fighting is desperate.

The Japanese artillery opened the battle at 5 a. m., the heaviest cannonading coming from the southeast. Deadly shells burst everywhere, their white smoke being distinctly traceable against the dark foliage on the mountain sides. The Japanese searched the whole countryside with their fire, selecting certain squares of territory on which for a few moments they massed a hail of shot and shell from all their guns. They then passed to another square, thus working the whole field with mathematical precision from right to left. In this way the entire Russian front was systematically searched in the first four hours of the cannonading. Then commenced the general Japanese advance along the whole line.

The Russians have been holding their ground gallantly, and their losses are small, considering the terrible nature of the Japanese fire.

The main Japanese attack is being directed against the Russian center and right, where the Russian losses have been the heaviest.

The Japanese advance was pressed with such vigor on the Russian southeast front that it developed into hand to hand fighting, the Twenty-third regiment repelling an attack at the point of the bayonet. One Japanese battery was dismantled.

Wounded men have been pouring into Liaoyang since the battle opened, mostly hurt by shrapnel shells and some by rifle bullets. The heights of Maetung, near the railroad, have been showered with projectiles.

The Retreat to Liaoyang.

Throughout Aug. 27 and 28 the Russian eastern divisions continued to fall back in good order on Liaoyang; but the movement was slow on account of bad roads and the difficulties of transportation, and the Japanese pressed closely several times with light batteries, dragging guns to the hills and shelling the troops whose retirement was covered by Russian guns. Consequently there were frequent artillery duels.

General Marson was wounded and there were other loseses of about 250 men.

The Russian retreat from Anshanshan was ordered for strategic reasons, practically no resistance being offered. A light screen of batteries facing the enemy's guns, beautifully disposed on a chain of hills, masked the withdrawal of the main force. When night fell the batteries also took up the retreat, their rear guard lighting bivouac fires to conceal the movement. But the Japanese soon discovered this ruse and pressed forward, coming up with the Russian rear guard Sunday morning. For an hour the light batteries were hotly engaged. To the lot of the Omak, Tobolsk and Kraanovovak regiments fell the duty of covering the retreat of General Zaroubaieff's Fourth Siberian army corps.

The task was difficult, as the enemy continued to advance, deploying light mountain guns against the Russian rear and left flanks, and it was imperative that the enemy should be held back to permit the removal of the baggage and artillery trains. The roads were washed out and heavy with mud produced by the deluge of rain preceding Friday. Many guns were mired and the horses exhausted.

Cossacks Harnessed to Guns.

Cossacks and infantrymen were harnessed to the guns and managed to haul them along. It was slow work, but was successfully accomplished. The greatest difficulty of the retirement on the east front was experienced before Vanbantai pass, where it was necessary to hold the Japanese in check until the artillery transport passed through and also to keep in touch with the Tenth army corps, commanded by General Herschelmann, to the north, as well as with the southern division, in order to prevent a turning movement.

From dawn until dark the eastern troops, although fatigued by four days' fighting, sustained a rear guard action.

Japs Advancing West of Railway.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 30.—General Sacharoff reports that a large Japanese force is advancing northward along the Taitsu river valley, west of the railroad. The report from General Sakharoff also announces an engagement between a Russian force and 150 Chinese bandits, of whom about fifty were killed.

Japs Lost Two Thousand at Anping.

Tokyo, Aug. 30.—The Japanese lost 2,000 men killed or wounded at the battle of Anping. The Russian losses have not been estimated, but are said to have been heavy. The Japanese captured eight guns at Anping and eight at Anshanshan.

Askold and Grozovoi Disarmed.

Shanghai, Aug. 30.—The Russian cruiser Askold and torpedo boat destroyer Grozovoi have finished disarming.

The Reason.

Little Son—Father, is there a reason for all things? Father—Yes, I suppose so. Little Son—Well, then, father, why do hens lay eggs? Father—Because they can't stand them on end.

SAYING THE GOOD WORD.

Tacoma, Wash., is a city where every resident has the say-the-good-word habit. All Tacomaites are town boomers. Not only this but the chamber of her commerce is an active aggressive body who are not afraid to expend a little money on town advertising and town publicity. The chamber has been responsible for this printing of tons upon tons of advertising matter setting forth clearly Tacoma's advantages.

The leaflets are attractively printed upon a fine quality of paper, well illustrated and with a concise statement of facts of interest. The Tacoma business man about to leave the city in the interests of his own business applies for and receives as many pounds of the advertising matter as he can use to advantage. And wherever he goes he finds time to say a good word for Tacoma and leave behind him a few of the leaflets to continue to advertise the city.

The result is that Tacoma has, enjoyed an increase in population of 35,000 in the last four years. An increase of 35,000 in population means a commensurate increase in business to support that number of people and leaves no room for doubt that Tacoma is really progressing. It all comes from saying the good word.

The experienced business men on the Board of Directors of the St. Louis Fair have at last brought the publicity department to book. They affirm that while every effort has been made to swell the revenues by sales of concessions and the like, the failure to advertise the Fair systematically and persistently and squarely in the leading newspapers of the country has cut the enterprise out of a vast attendance which might have been achieved. No amount of begging for press notices can take the place of gold and direct advertising, and the business men realize that.

A. U. S. treasury ruling of interest concerns cider and says: "Where a beverage is simply the juce of apple flavored by any other fruit juice, special tax under the internal revenue laws of the United States is not required to be paid for the sale of apple though by fermentation it becomes an intoxicant. But special tax is required to be paid for the sale of apple juice mixed with spirituous liquors regardless of whether or not the beverage is intoxicating."

The Tioga county commissioners visited Towanda recently to look into the question of a stone pile for jail prisoners. They found the system here working finely and have decided to establish one at Wellsboro. The newspapers of Tioga county have been demanding something of the kind for some time and as is usual where newspapers demand something good and demand it hard, they got it.

The news of the critical illness of Senator Hoar of Massachusetts is heard with general regret all over the country. Senator Hoar was of a type of stern honest men whose influence in national affairs is always needed but often times absent. He has no compromise with half truth and his life has been an open book for he who wills to read.

More than 100,000 packages of government seeds have gone into the Seventh Kansas congressional district to help in Congressman Murdock's re-election. These seeds are supposed to produce the votes that bloom in the fall.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Despite stories of a possibility of Sunday opening of the World's Fair at St. Louis which have been printed broadcast of late, it has been declared by a representative of the exposition that such a discussion was not taken seriously by the Board of Directors or Executive Committee.

The summer visitors to Towanda this year have been delighted with the fine climate and the many fine bits of scenery and beautiful drives in this vicinity. Their words of praise for Towanda will no doubt result in bringing others here in the future.

Russian soldiers have frequent opportunities to admire the cleanliness and completeness of the contents of the knapsacks of fallen Japanese soldiers. Beside food and ammunition these contain a map of Southern Manchuria on a large scale.

THE POLITICAL CAMPAIGN.

The political campaign continues to be without special interest except in Maine and Vermont where state elections occur this month. Vermont votes on the sixth of September and Maine on the twelfth, and in those commonwealths the Democrats are making a fierce fight, not in any hope of carrying those states, but for the purpose of reducing the normal Republican majority as much as possible so that the courage of their party will be revived in the so-called doubtful states.

In the West the Democrats have little to hope for and there are many indications that they have abndoned the idea of making the fight there. The most significant feature of the situation is the elimination by the Democratic managers from their claims of Indiana and Illinois. They virtually concede these states to the opposition. It was their intention to open branch headquarters in Chicago from which to direct an active canvas in some of the Western states, but that idea has been abandoned. After a careful look over the ground the Democratic leaders have determined to leave the West to the Republicans and to concentrate their entire effort on the eastern states, which means New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Delaware, Maryland and West Virginia. Accordingly, they have given up their intention to hire rooms in Chicago and have arranged for large headquarters and a big force of speakers for the East. The headquarters will be in New York city and the plan is to make the hardest canvas for the Empire state and the rest of the former doubtful states on the Atlantic seaboard, which they have put up since 1884. Ample campaign funds have been promised the Democratic managers this year.

In giving up the West without a struggle the Democrats have been wise. There was some loud boasting, until recently, that the Democrats had hopes of rolling up a heavy vote in Ohio, Indiana and Illinois while they pretended they were confident of carrying Wisconsin on account of the LaFollette feud. When they selected Tom Taggart for head of their national committee it was predicted that a big fight would be made by the Democrats for Indiana. Tables of figures were cited by Democratic arithmetic men to show that the Democrats have carried the hoosier state a great many times since the Civil war and that therefore, they would have a good chance to do it in 1904. Much was made, too, of the long contest in the Republican state convention in Illinois, and on this fight was based the hope that the Democrats would carry that state this year. West of the Misisssippi, also, there were to be great conquests by the Democracy. Colorado, Montana, Idaho, Washington, California, Utah and several other states were sure to be won by the Democrats this year, if a serious attempt were made. On the basis of these claims and boasts Taggart and lieutenants were said to be about to put up a fight in the West that would make the canvas of 1904 memorable for its picturesqueness and activity.

Chairman Taggart has the sense to seee that there is no chance for his party to gain any state in the West in 1904 that was carried by McKinley in 1900, and he has no hope of retaining any of the four little states in the West that Bryan held then. Consequently, the entire field of the Alleghenies is to be left to the Republicans and a desperate effort will be made to capture New York and New Jersey. There can be no doubt that a strong campaign will be put up by the Democrats on the Atlantic seaboard. With their war chest well provided by Davis and his Wall street friends of the trusts, whom Roosevelt had been assailing, the Democrats hope to stump every voting precinct in the states of New York and New Jersey. This is, however, a Republican year. The conditions which repel the Democrats in the West prevail in the East also. Oregon's overwhelming majority a few weeks ago shows the directions and force of the political currents in this campaign and indications point to as large, if not larger, majority for Roosevelt in the electoral college of 1904 as that of McKinley in 1900.

LACK OF DIRECTNESS.

Have you ever noticed the rambler? He is the man who lacks directness, the ability to come to a point, to make a decision. There are many of the class loose. They never quite know but "come around later and I will tell you." When you go around again they have been busy and have not quite decided. This is the way they buy goods, sell, figure and give up news.

The man who has work to do must learn to do it now. He cannot wait for a few days on every decision that comes up. He must act at once and be ready for the next problem. The lack of direction, of knowing where one is going, is an almost fatal defect in many men. It is a good thing to pound into the young, to get them to do and to do it today.

The richest man in Europe is the Emperor of Russia; his reported contribution of 200,000,000 rubles to the war fund is quite possible, as his ancestors left him an enormous wealth, and his annual income is estimated at over $40,000,000. His expenditures are on the same scale. A single court hall has cost a million rubles. Yet for his personal needs the Czar is said not to spend over $50 a day.

Make no mistake and buy the shoe, $1.97, at K. D. Westbrook's.

COURTS SHOULD HAVE POWER.

The Philadelphia Press says: "Judge Taylor in Washington county has had a lot of constables before him and admonished them that they must report violations of the liquor laws. This sort of a thing is frequently done in many counties throughout the Commonwealth. It is so common that Judges ought to be getting tired of it, since it effects nothing.

"The constables know very well that it is their duty to report violations of the liquor laws but there are comparatively few of them who make any pretense of doing it. In some counties constables have repeatedly stood up before the Court and unblushingly declared that they knew of no violations when at the same moment the Judges have had evidence from other sources of open violations. In many of these cases so little respect was paid the law and so little attempt made to hide the fact that people in their everyday observations could not fail to see it—but the constables were ignorant and had nothing to report."

For the first time in history the Primate of the Anglican Church is in the United States. The Archbishop of Canterbury has come to this country to attend the celebration of the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of Columbia university which was King's College until the Revolution, and which is still under the general direction of the Protestant Episcopal Church, the American daughter of the Church of England. A secondary reason for his coming here is to attend the Church congress in Boston. Except the present King, when Prince of Wales, he is the most exalted English personage who has been the guest of what were once British colonies.

The fact that there is much drinking by minors in Troy borough was actually uncovered in court last week and the Troy constable said that the alleged condition was true but that he did not know who furnished the liquor. The constable is now engaged in the duty of finding out. It would be a bad thing for the younger generation to get the old time habit of drinking liquor as an every day occurrence and inflict their odorous breaths upon man, woman, girl and boy alike. There was a time when this went but today the young man who drinks and goes out into society with liquor's smell upon him is not regarded as popular or gentlemanly.

Julius Hoerner of Blairsville, has the ideas that should some day make him a leader in wholesale operations of some kind. He was arrested the other day on an embezzlement charge and while awaiting for the train the officers were surrounded by 17 young ladies, each of whom claimed to be Hoerner's intended wife. Each exhibited on her finger an engagemnt ring in support of her claims. The rings are said to be a part of the stock o premiums offered by the company the young man represented.

The newest slang for "liar" is the words "Che Foo." Our authority for this assertion is the Kansas City Tribune, which declares: Che Foo has been added to our vernacular. In the East when anybody relates some astounding tale the cry of "That's a Che Foo!" greets it. As Che Foo has turned out some of the most terrific rumors was was ever blessed with it wouldn't be strange if the name of the enterprising place was thus immortalized.

Judge Fanning's views on bridge building are eminently right. He believes in building for the future as well as the present. The same is true of good roads. The state's specifications call for a road that will cost $5,000 a mile but they will last over night and over many a thous and night with little repair. Build good bridges and good roads.

The grangers in various sections of the state are taking a hand in the agitation over the disbursement of the $15,000 appropriation for the state agricultural exhibit at the St Louis exposition. They demand an itemized statement and are liable to get what they want.

District Attorney McBride of Venango county, has taken a new tack to compel the building of good roads in his district. He has prepared indictments against the commissioners in five townships charging them with maintaining a comon nuisance in their bad roads.

DISCUSSES THE SITUATION.

Pennsylvania Republicans Urged to Roll Up a Record-Breaking Majority and to Rally to Congressional Candidates.

Philadelphia, August 30.

Senator Penrose having returned home from his vacation trip in the far west matters have taken on a very active aspect in the campaign in this state. As chairman of the Republican state committee, the senior senator has serious responsibilities on his shoulders and will have his hands full until after election day.

In carrying out his purpose to make this a record-breaking year as far as the size of the Republican majority is concerned, Chairman Penrose will leave nothing undone to rouse the party workers to their best efforts in every county in the commonwealth. He was delighted with the amount of work already accomplished by Secretary Andrews, who remained in charge of the headquarters during the chairman's absence, and was pleased to learn how enthusiastic and earnest the committeemen throughout the state have been in taking hold of the work of the canvass.

Senator Penrose, who reached home on Sunday, after looking after a number of matters requiring his immediate attention, left at once for New York to keep an appointment with Chairman Cortelyou, of the Republican national committee.

During Senator Penrose's absence Chairman Cortelyou wrote to him requesting a conference in relation to a number of matters bearing upon the national campaign which he desired to take up with him. Chairman Cortelyou has been very complimentary in his references to Senator Penrose and in expressing the high regard in which he holds his opinion on political matters and of his appreciation of his strength as a party leader.

Just after the nomination of Roosevelt and before he had left the convention city, Cortelyou called on Senator Penrose and informed him that he desired his active services in the national campaign. He recognized the fact that the Pennsylvania senator had a valuable training in the school of practical politics in his connection with the management of the party organization in this state.

It is quite likely that Senator Penrose will be called to New York frequently during the national campaign, but he will not neglect the canvass in his home state. He has received a number of invitations to address meetings in New York, Indiana, Delaware, New Jersey and other states, and as far as possible will comply with these requests, all of which come from associates in the United States senate, members of the President's cabinet or from Chairman Cortelyou himself.

"We are anxious to carry every doubtful congressional district in Pennsylvania," said Chairman Penrose, in discussing his plans for the campaign in this state. "We now have 29 of the 32 congressmen from Pennsylvania. I would like to make our next delegation solidly Republican, but the best we can hope for, I guess, will be 30 of the 32. Pennsylvania is vitally interested in the present campaign, not merely in retaining a Republican president in the White House, but in seeing to it that both branches of congress shall continue with Republican majorities. The vast manufacturing and other industrial interests of this state have thriven under the Pennsylvania idea of a Republican protective tariff.

"There are many hundreds of thousands of our citizens now finding profitable employment and there are millions of capital invested which would be placed in jeopardy should the Democrats get control of congress and be in a position to carry out their free trade policies. It is all very well to say that the United States senate is reliably Republican, and that the house of representatives of itself cannot pass a tariff act, but it should be remembered that political changes come quickly in this country, and that we should always be on the alert for any contingency that might arise.

"In Pennsylvania this fall we shall be called upon to elect members of the legislature who will in January next elect a member of the United States senate to serve for the full term of six years. The man thus chosen will be elected for a term which will carry him over the next presidential election. He will have two years to serve under the administration of the president who will be elected four years hence, and his vote may be the deciding factor in much important legislation directly affecting the interests of Pennsylvania. This fact must not be forgotten in the balloting for members of the state senate and the state house of representatives when our citizens go to the polls in November next.

"It should also be remembered that changes in but a few districts will give the Democrats a majority in the next house of representatives at Washington. Pennsylvania should therefore hold her own and if possible gain a member or two in the next house.

"Under no circumstances should any Republican be persuaded to vote for any other than the regular Republican nominee for congress. Let Pennsylvania continue to have the largest Republican representation in the national house of representatives, and she will be in a position to protect her interests and to serve her constituents in all emergencies."

The advertising of one of the transcontinental lines is thoroughly systematic and no longer haphazard. The company issues a great variety of attractive literature, including costly booklets for different classes of people. "This matter," says the advertising manager, "would lose much of its value if we would fail to use newspaper space freely to call attention to it. A large proportion of the people who are influenced by it are induced by newspaper advertisements to send for it.—Philadelphia Record.

ANNUAL PENSION REPORT.

The annual report of Pension Commissioner Ware, covering the fiscal year ended June 30, 1904, was made public Monday by acting Secretary of the interior. The report shows that during the year the cost of maintaining the pension system of the government has been $144,712, 787. The appropriation for this purpose was $146,419,296, leaving an unexpended balance of $1,706,508. During the year 47,374 persons were added to the pension rolls—326 by special act of Congress and the balance by the Pension Bureau. During the same period 49,147 pensioners were dropped from the rolls. Of these death claimed 43,020, of whom 31,728 were soldiers, 30,071 being volunteers of the Civil War. The total number of pensioners on the rolls as covered by the report is 720,315 soldiers, 273,841 widows and dependents, and 606 army nurses.

The report refers to the order issued by the commissioner on March 15 last, in which age is made an evidence of disability and says that in three and a half months of its operation only 8 per cent, or 28,806 out of 375,000 pensioners, have asked for increase under its terms. The report says the order introduces no new principles, and "is in the direct line of economy, as it certainly is in line of precedent. Less than 6 per cent of the appropriation of $1,500,000 was used to pay claimants under the order, the balance being turned back into the treasury.

The annual catalog of the Susquehanna Collegiate Institute is ready for circulation and can be obtained from the principal of the school, C. R. Stiles, Towanda, Pa. This year's catalogue is not only a comprehensive one as regards the courses of the school but it is attractively gotten up with several illustrations of scenery roundabout. With the Institute and the Towanda High school there is no need of anyone in this section looking farther for thorough and high standard instruction in courses of academies and high schools. Both are well suited for their respective aims and each has advantages which make it necessary and useful. Here's to the success of Professor Stiles of the Institute and Professor Humphries of the High school.

The past few days have been about as delightful specimens of fine weather as nature rolls together. But then Towanda always did not know how to have good weather.

SERIOUS SHOOTING AFFRAY AMONG ATHENS ITALIANS.

Murder May Possibly Result From a Fight There.

A fight among members of the Athens and Sayre Italian colony Thursday night resulted in a serious shooting affray that may possibly result in a murder case for the Bradford county courts. Early in the evening a fight was precipitated, revolvers were used and as a result two men were taken to the Sayre hospital with gunshot wounds. The shooting is said to be the work of one man.

Of the wounded men taken to the Packer hospital one was very seriously hurt and the injuries of the other are of a less grave nature.

Josseppi Cirooma and Dominick Mochello are the men's names. Mochello is the most seriously injured and may die. The Italian colony are terror stricken and refuse to give any information but the police have learned that two or three strangers appeared at the Italian quarters in Athens about 8 o'clock that evening and proceeded to hold up the crowd for their money.

Those who resisted were shot and slashed with a knife. The robbers escaped in the darkness.

Secretary Lyon of Spring Hill, is making arangements for some fine attractions for both these days. A meeting of the stock holders of the association will be held in the council rooms on Friday evening to select superintendents for the various departments of the fair.

Creating a Demand.

A prominent advertiser asserts that "newspaper advertising has had much to do with the general prosperity because it has induced people to buy many things which they would have done without but for this form of persuasion. There are numerous articles in genral use which were unknown to the public a few years ago, and the demand has created by newspaper advertising."—Philadelphia Record.

Democratic Convention.

The Democratic county convention will be held at the court house in Towanda on Tuesday Sept. 6 at 2 p. m. The purposes are to nominate a county ticket of county surveyor, district attorney, three representatives, as well as to take whatever action seems necessary in regard to state senator and congressman. A chairman for the ensuing year will also be elected.

GRAND JURY RECOMMENDS NEW INSANE BUILDING.

Should Be Located at Some More Convenient Point.

The grand jury made its final report on Friday afternoon after returning from an inspection of the county buildings at Burlington. Their report is interesting and shows that a careful study of the buildings was made. They found the buildings at Burlington well kept and cleanly and the inmates well cared for and contented. They commended the excellent attention given to his duties by Supt. Edward W. Putnam and his assistants and for the economical manner in which the county house affairs are managed.

The grand jury recommends that no additional expense be placed upon the insane department as the building is old and in bad decay but that as soon as the finances of the county warrant it a new building be erected for the care of the county's insane at some more convenient point.

The county jail was found to be an excellent condition as regards cleanliness and sanitary provisions and the court house was recommended as well built for its purposes. The jury recommends that additional seats be placed in the basemnt of the court house for the accommodation of witnesses who are to appear before the grand jury.

SAYRE'S FOOLISH KICK.

Lay Their Defeat to Towanda's Opposition to Them.

The committee in charge of the recent firemen's convention in Towanda do not take kindly to the criticism in Sayre papers regarding the awards in races and contests here. The idea carried by the Sayre editors is that Towanda robbed them. In the band contest over which Sayre had made such a howl there was not a Towanda man a judge and it is a known fact that the Packers played "The Barber of Seville" so fast that the clarionets were run off their feet and the battery of drums came in a half beat or more too late in the forte parts.

Towanda tried to make each contest and each race a success and have the award right. It selected good judges and it is not for Sayre or any other town to raise a howl over the matter. The fact that the Wellsboro band played an easier selection than did the Sayre band is not to the Wellsboro band's discredit. They played the selection with accurate tempo and perfect execution and that is what counted in the contest. As far as the races were concerned no time keeper had 28 seconds for Sayre as the correspondent of one of the papers alleged. Some one in the crowd called out 28 seconds and this is the manner in which the report started.

Ulster Won From Dushore.

The Ulster base ball team defeated the Dushore team at Dushore on Wednesday of last week by a score of 4 to 2. Potter went in the box for Dushore but retired after two innings in favor of Salzinger, the Luzerne Reds pitcher, no scores being made off him until the ninth inning when four hits brought in one run. Davidson pitched for Ulster for the first seven innings, only three hits being made off him. Johnson pitched the remainder of the game and allowed no hits. The game was a hot one and the Ulster team is to be congratulated on its victory.

Wellsboro Appreciative.

The ninth annual meeting of the five county firemen's association at Towanda, Thursday and Friday of last week, was one of the greatest in the history of the association. The citizens had generously helped the committee and nothing was left undone to make the stay of the visitors one of unalloyed pleasure. Every business place and nearly every private residence was gay with decoration.—Wellsboro Advocate.

Advertising Did It.

The manager of a Western magazine of remarkable circulation affirms that "advertising built our circulation." In the first year he spent $75,000 in advertising, chiefly in newspapers, and since then his annual expenditure for the same purpose has averaged $130,000. The subscriptions which came in the first few months were many and were caused entirely by the advertisements.—Philadelphia Record.

ENGINE JUMPED TRACK; DAMAGE WAS SLIGHT.

Two of the Six Large Drivers on 795 Left the Rails Near Standing Stone

Passenger engine No. 795, pulling train No. 20 jumped the track at Standing Stone Wednesday night of last week but luckily the rtain was saved, no one was injured and the engine was only slightly damaged, says the Athens News.

Two drivers, out of six, jumped from the rails and the engineman at once shut off steam and applied the brakes. The wheel bumped over the rails for quite a distance but as the other four drivers remained on the track, a bad wreck was averted. The engine was found to be strained and it had to be taken back to the Sayre shops and a freight engine was taken from a train and pulled the passenger train on its journey.

Engine No. 795 is one of the heavy, six driver passenger service class. There are five of them at present in service running out of Sayre and some of the railroad men are beginning to consider them as "hoodos." A short time ago, 796, a prototype of the 795, jumped the track near Ulster and on the very next trip that engine made over the road, it again jumped the track at the same place. In all the instances where this type of engine jumped the rails there has been no cause known. Last Wednesday night No. 795 was rounding a slight curve when the drivers jumped, but the train had rounded much greater curves before reaching Standing Stone.

GRANGE PICNIC.

About 400 Gathered at the East Towanda Fair Grounds.

The annual picnic of the Bradford and Sullivan Pomona Grange No. 23 was held at the East Towanda fair grounds on Friday afternoon. The cold and chilly weather of the morning kept many away but by afternoon there were some 400 people present to listen to the addresses. The morning was spent in a social way and a basket dinner was enjoyed at noon.

At 1 o'clock the grangers and their families were called together in the grand stand by Master Myrt Ferguson and listened to speeches by Oliver Willson, master of the Illinois state grange, and J. T. Ailman, secretary of the Pennsylvania state grange. Mr. Wilson discussed the history of grange work in the United States for the past 30 years and gave an indication of the work that yet lies before it. Mr. Wilson was a very pleasant speaker and his address was full of interest and suggestion for those present.

Mr. Ailman painted a rather gloomy picture of things in his own state and said that the corporations had gobbled up so much that there was nothing left. He believed that a paternal government was not such a bad thing and he wanted the owners of coal mines, oil and gas lands to pay a royalty to the state so that the state would not be a revenue grabber but a dividend payer with the public cutting off the coupons. A quartet from Columbia grange gave several selections of vocal music which were much enjoyed.

IN THE KLONDIKE.

Local Newspapers Cost the Snug Sum of $24 Per Year.

Fred S. McFarline, who has been visiting in Towanda, was telling a representative of this paper about newspapers in the Klondike. Although there are but 4,000 persons living in Dawson City, there are three daily newspapers, two morning and one evening. These papers which are the same size as The Daily Review sell for the unusual price of $24 per year or $2 per month. Readers cost 25 cents a line straight and display ads are so high that few merchants can take space.

The cost of the associated press reports and other heavy expenses that enter into a paper make the cost of the Klondike papers very high. They make a keen bid for sales among the miners along the many creeks. Telephones in business places in Dawson City costs $15 per month.

Was Not a Burglar.

Residents on Huston stret had their suspicions aroused on Wednesday night of last week by the actions of a man who skipped around behind trees when he saw anyone coming. He finally ran down the road and disappeared. The police afterwards discovered that it was a swain who had come 14 miles from the country to call in his girl and found another fellow basking in the moonshine on her smiles. He was playing the detective when found. The police let the poor fellow go, admonishing him against letting his detective work take such a suspicious appearing turn.

Troy Liked It.

The ninth annual Five County Firemen's convention at Towanda last Friday drew the largest crowd ever gathered within the borders of the county seat. It was also called one of the most enjoyable gatherings ever given. The citizens of Towanda were enthusiastic and generous in doing all they could to make the convention a success. All business places and residences along the line of march were decorated gaily with bunting and flags.—Trov Gazette.

Doesn't Like Friday.

Pat Meehan, who was let out of jail on Friday from a ten day's sentence for drunkenness, was re-arrested Friday night on the same charge. Burgess Pratt gave Pat 30 days. Pat asked the burgess to be sure and not let his sentence expire on Friday as that was a bad day for him.

RELICS AT WYALUSING.

Large Collection of Flint Arrow Heads Found in a Ditch.

On Tuesday of last week, while digging a ditch along second street in Wyalusing borough, Morris Harps made a find of Indian arrow heads that will cause envy among the collectors of relics. The find consists of thirty-eight well shaped flint arrow heads, all of them being of nearly the same size and shape, about four inches long by a little less than two inches in width. The entire find was was placed in groups of six or seven side by side and the end of one group lapping into the ends of the preceeding half dozen. So regularly were they placed that they appear to have been buried in that position.

Local relic hunters are undecided as to whether they are arrow or spear heads. To what tribe of Indians they originally belonged is not known.

Mrs. Van Vorst's Lace Handkerchief

By SARAH COMSTOCK

...Copyright, 1903, by T. C. McClure...

"This is the man," said Mrs. Van Vorst.

She laid on the table the pretty silver police whistle with the satisfaction of having used it to good purpose. Then she stood back complacently to view the result.

A strange group was gathered in her dainty dressing room. In the midst of its gilt and whiteness and laciness, its filmy curtains and tinted satin upholsteries, stood two burly policemen gripping her butler. Three frightened maids huddled in the doorway, too much terrified to come in and too curious to go.

"So ye found him tinkerin' with a drawer, did ye, mum?" asked one of the officers.

"I found the drawer open, and he was just putting the lace handkerchief into his pocket," replied Mrs. Van Vorst, indicating an open drawer of the dresser with a sweeping oratorical gesture, for she had a keen liking for the dramatic, and this situation appealed to her. She was no coward, and there was something delightful in having entered her room to find a burglar, even though her own familiar butler, there before her. Perhaps the affair was more pleasing in that he had been such an oddly mild and obliging burglar.

"I came to my room only a short time ago," she went on, "and as I entered the door I heard the souud of a soft step. I thought that Fifine had come in before me. Strangely enough, I did not even glance up at first, but stopped there by the door to arrange those orchids. While I was bending above them a voice spoke. Imagine my start when I heard a man's voice saying, 'I have stolen your handkerchief.' I repressed a scream and looked up to recognize in this creature the man whom I have lately employed as my servant."

The man stood quietly before her while she went on with her story. The policemen kept a wary eye upon him, but relaxed their grip as they saw his submission.

"What came next on the programme, mum?" the officer pursued.

"I cried 'Base wretch!' and seized the whistle that summoned you. He made no reply to me, but sat down calmly as if waiting to be arrested."

"And, faith, what did he do with the handkerchief?"

"He was putting it into his pocket at the time he called my attention."

"Which one?"

"The right waistcoat pocket."

Two great hands of the law prepared to search.

The man spoke gently. "Don't trouble, gentlemen," he said. "I can get it for you easier." One of his hands was freed, and he produced an exquisite handkerchief of cobweblike lace. "And there's another thing I want to do." He started to reach for a hip pocket when a rough hand stopped his.

"None o' that," snarled the officer.

"Then I'll thank you to reach in that pocket for me, sir."

The policeman did so. There was no revolver in it. He gave a grunt of chagrin.

"It's the money I'd like to have you get out, sir. I ain't armed. Please give Mrs. Van Vorst $5. That'll pay for the little perfumery bottle I just broke while I was getting the handkerchief."

Mrs. Van Vorst stared in astonishment. Page was very unlike the burglars of storied fame. You do not look for courtesy from the man who robs you, and she felt for the first time in her life ill at ease. She was supposed to be mistress of any situation. Her own butler, a common thief, was baffling her.

The policeman took five jingling dollars from the man's pocket and laid them on the table.

"Sure, and it's a polite burglar he is, mum," said he. "The judge 'll give him a chance to show his manners at an early date. We'll trouble ye no more now, mum. Good avenin' to ye."

As the officers marched their victim from the room he turned and spoke to Mrs. Van Vorst.

"I beg your pardon, ma'am, for the trouble and scare I've given you, and I'm much obliged to you for fixing it all up for me so easy."

Leaving her to ponder this puzzling remark, he disappeared with the officers.

From the light and warmth of the luxurious house the three hurried into the bleak rain without. The patrol wagon backed up to the sidewalk, its step conveniently ready for the guest. The horses fidgeted impatiently. The restless driver clanged his gong.

"Hustle up there, your politeness," growled one of the officers.

As the man started to enter the wagon he was met by Costello, a policeman who had been waiting on the wagon.

"The divvil and all!" cried Costello. "Sure and it's Bill Page!"

"It's me all right," answered the man with a friendly smile and entered the wagon.

Costello followed to act as guard, the gong clanged, the horses started off with a dash, and the assembled small boys scattered, their show being over.

"Faith and I'd like to know what ye mean by stalin' a handkerchief?" said Costello after the story had been told. "Bill Page nivver saw the insoide of the station in his life for anything but a dhrunk. Why, you're honester than a barrel of good whisky."

"Didn't I make a pretty honest steal of it?" Page said evasively.

"Ye made the quarest stale in all me acquaintance. Afther takin' pleasure in announcin' to the lady that her handkerchief was to your loikin' ye sits pacefully down to wait for us, with an open window and a fire escape beside ye. Did ye think ye'd wait for an umbrella before venturin' forth in the inclemency?"

It was an astonishment to every one who knew him when it was told that he had been stealing. He had been known to the police for a long time as a toper, but no one dreamed that he had any vice more serious than a love for the bottle. He had paid the penalty of being found drunk a number of times and was known to the force as a thoroughly good fellow when sober. Judge Marvin had given him a long sentence the last time, hoping to work reform, and he had endeared himself to everybody about the jail, where he was intrusted with the care of the flower beds.

The formalities of another sentence passed quickly. Page was strangely cheerful about it all. Judge Marvin reprimanded him severely, all the time feeling that his words made no impression, for the man seemed well content with his lot. And yet he was not in need of shelter, as are some who seek arrest. He was entirely sober, and investigation proved that he had given up a well paid position for a petty offense, the theft of an article that must have been useless to him.

The jail doors creaked to admit him once more. He settled down cozily in his quarters, affably friendly to some of his old time comrades.

Days slipped by, and a restlessness came over him, although he was the same orderly prisoner as ever. At last he approached the jailer:

"Why don't you give me my old job, sir?" he asked anxiously.

"Oh, you had the flower beds, didn't you? That's so. Want them again, do you?"

"Oh, please, sir," Page replied, his face as eager as a child's.

Next day found him out in the sunshine, shears and trowel in hand.

The flower beds surrounded the next building, which was the woman's section of the jail. Page approached his work nervously and went about trimming the roses in a preoccupied manner. At every sound he started.

A light step came up the walk. Page jumped to his feet as he recognized the sound of it.

"Polly!" he cried and seized a girl's hands in his.

Joy and sorrow mingled in her face. "Oh, Bill, you're back after you swore to me you'd never drink again!" she cried.

"I haven't touched a drop, Polly," he answered, and his words rang true. "It was for stealin'!" he cried joyfully.

"Stealing!" she gasped in horror.

"Yes—don't you see—an honest steal. I took the handkerchief and gave it right back and gave Mrs. Van Vorst the money to pay for the bottle I broke doin' it. I had to run the bluff, Polly. I couldn't stay away from you any longer. Ain't you glad to see me, little girl?"

"I don't know," she said, perplexed.

"Now we'll be here together just like we used to be when we first got to know each other. We can see each other every day until you get out, and mine's only a week after that. We'll see each other when you have your walk, for I've got the flower beds again. And I've reformed since you talked to me—ain't touched a drop, Polly, on my honor I ain't—and when we get out I'll be as sober as a judge, and you'll never steal another penny, poor little girl, 'cause your mother 'll never be starvin' again. She's all right, Polly. I left her plenty of money. And we'll have that house with the grass in front, and we'll be happy to beat the band. It won't be so long to wait, little girl—there, there, don't."

And her tears found refuge on his shoulder.

SULTAN MURAD DEAD

Long Imprisonment of Turkey's "Man In the Iron Mask" Ended.

DEPOSED BY ABDUL HAMID.

Insanity Alleged—Confined For Years In Cruel Dungeon by His Unnatural Brother—Buried With Devoted Mother, Who Shared His Captivity.

London, Aug. 30.—It is officially announced from Constantinople that former Sultan Murad V. has died of diabetes. His remains have been interred in the Yenidjami mausoleum at Stamboul, where his mother is buried.

Murad V. was born in 1840 and ascended the throne after the murder of the Sultan Abdul Aziz, May, 1876. In July of that year Murad was placed under the regency of his brother, the present sultan, Azdul Hamid II., and on Aug. 31 he was dethroned.

Outwardly this act was performed legally by the council of ministers on the ground that he was insane. The real facts in the case, however, will probably never be known, but it has been claimed that Murad was a good deal more sane than his brother, and one of the greatest terrors of Abdul Hamed's existence was the fear that this Turkish "Man with the Iron Mask," as he has been termed, might escape from his place of confinement in the Cheragan palace. About six years ago he was removed to the Malta kiosk, in the grounds of the Yildiz palace, which is surrounded by lofty walls.

Captive's Insanity Questioned.

In spite of the secrecy of Murad's removal he was seen by several foreigners as he passed, who declared that though he had aged and was haggard in appearance he presented the appearance of a man in the full possession of his mental faculties.

The confinement of Murad has been of the cruelist character. Only his jailers were allowed to see him, and every precaution was taken to prevent any intelligence of what was going on in the outside world from reaching him. Ostensibly, however, Murad was under the charge of General Riza Pasha, son of the old field marshal of that name, who had known Murad from childhood and was deeply attached to him.

Although Murad is announced to have died from diabetes, it had generally been understood, according to the palace reports, that he was suffering from tuberculosis.

The dread that Abdul Hamid had of the escape of his brother was only one of the sultan's many apprehensions. He was also continually haunted by the fact that at any moment the Sheik Ul Islam, head of the Mohammedan hierarchy, might be induced by the sultan's enemies to declare that Murad V. had recovered his reason.

In that case Abdul Hamid's tenure of the throne would have been ended. The Young Turk party has persistently claimed that Murad was sane and that he was kept in confinement only to prevent his recovering possession of the throne.

In a Living Tomb.

No European specialists had seen Murad since 1876, and since his own mother, who was allowed to share his captivity, died some years ago no one could say with any degree of certainty whether he was really still in the land of the living.

The ex-sultan was a Mason of high degree, and when King Edward VII., as Prince of Wales, was grand master of the Masonic order he was on several occasions appealed to by the Young Turks, the revolutionary party, to lend his great influence to the imprisoned ex-sultan's cause. It is believed that the danger of international complications which these appeals threatened was one of the chief reasons for King Edward's resigning the grand mastership when he ascended the throne.

Last winter there was a case of what was diagnosed as small pox in Smithfield township in the family of Burt Rich. A girl by the name of Jennie Hall had been hired to do the work and tend the sick patient, who at first was supposed to be suffering from the measles. The wages stipulated were such as are ordinarily paid for housework.

When the case proved to be small pox the girl remained and did the work and nursed the sick. She thought that the pay should be made commensurate with the seriousness of the disease and her father put in a bill at the rate of a dollar a day for the 45 days that his daughter was at the Rich home. The suit was tried before Justice C. M. Hall here Tuesday with Attorney William Foyle representing the plaintiff and William Maxwell, Esq., the defendant. Justice Hall reserved his decision for 10 days.

A TRINITY OF EVILS.

Cured by Dr. Kennedy's NEW Medicine After Other Treatment Had Failed.

Mr. Martin Montgomery, of Silvara, Penn., formerly of Roxbury, N.Y., writing to Dr. David Kennedy, of Kennedy Row, said:

"Your new medicine, Cal-cura Solvent, is immense. It cured me of liver and kidney troubles, and rheumatism, after a lot of weary dosing with things that did no good. It is a record breaker and no mistake."

As in Mr. Montgomery's case, rheumatism is often, indeed almost always, complicated with kidney and liver trouble. It is because Cal-cura Solvent acts on the kidneys and liver and at the same time expels uric acid from the blood, that it is such a reliable remedy for rheumatism and the attendant disorders. It cures by removing the cause, therefore the cure is permanent, safe and sure. All druggists, $1.00.

New Gold Field Found.

Much excitement has been caused in Australia by the announcement of the discovery of a new gold field in the northern part of the island. Prospectors are flocking to the territory as rapidly as possible. In our country the rush for wealth is just as much in evidence, but in the excitement we forget to look after our health until sickness comes, and then it is sometimes too late. Preserve your health above everything else and you will then have a far more precious treasure than all the gold in the world. The best means of protecting your health is to take Hostetter's Stomach Bitters at the first sign of indigestion, dyspepsia, constipation, biliousness, liver troubles or malaria. It positively cures these ailments. Try a bottle and see for yourself.

TOWANDA IN GOOD FORM.

Defeated Luzerne Reds Here by Score of 3 to 1.

Towanda defeated the Luzerne Reds here Thursday afternoon by a score of 3 to 1 before a small crowd. Cotter and Russell were in the points for Towanda and both put up good games while Thompson and Simmons were the Red's battery. The Reds made their run in the first inning. Seal cracked a hot grounder which went through Lynch, Kilcoyne hit, then Ed. Williams hit and Seal scored, Kilcoyne getting out at the plate. Towanda made two in the third inning. Andrews got first on an error at third. Cotter hit. Putnam hit and scored Andrews and Cotter was out at home. Shay hit and Putnam scored at home but bumped Simmons so hard that he was laid out for a few minutes. Towanda made another in the fifth. Kline got first on an error at first and scored on Russell's hit. The features of the game were two double plays, Stater, touching the runner and retiring the batsman at first and Madigan throwing runner out at first Shay doubling to Russell who tagged Kilcoyne at third. Seal made a fine running catch. Cotter made a great stop and M. Madigan saved a run by a one hand stop of a high ball thrown to third. J. Madigan umpired the game.

During the heavy electrical storm of Monday afternoon W. H. Homet of Camptown, was struck by lightning and received a bad shock. He was standing in M. L. Bramhall's workshop when a bolt came down the chimney and apparently struck him in the right side and hip. Besides the shock at the time Mr. Homet feels no ill effects from being struck by lightning.—Rocket.

REV. DAVID CRAFT SPOKE BEFORE HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

Gave Interesting Account of Colonel Hartley's Expedition.

Rev. David Craft of Angelica N. Y., gave the address of the day before the regular monthly meeting of the Bradford County Historical society on Saturday afternoon. His address, which was an impromptu one, was upon the expedition of Colonel Hartley through this section in the times of the Indian and Troy depredations and was an intensely interesting narration of the gallant work done by the little band of whites.

Mr. Craft expressed his appreciation of the fine rooms of the historical society and said that he was full aware of the rich field that there is in Bradford county for the collection of relics and data concerning the early history of the section. As evidence of this he spoke of the band of French royalists who came in 1793 to Asylum, a few miles down the river from Towanda, and lived there for 10 years. Some 15 or 20 of the exiles died here and were buried in a corner of the Gordon farm. The place where the graves were is now a part of a cultivated field with no marker to tell where the bodies lay. Mr. Craft thought that the society might well mark these places for future generations to read and learn.

He then spoke of the Hartley expedition which went out to render uninhabitable the region that had sent out the Indians and Tories who perpetrated the horror of the Wyoming massacre, a massacre so terrible that the news of it astonished the whole world and called down upon the minstry of England the maledictions of Christendom. The expedition started out from Muncy with 400 men under Colonel Hartley. They proceeded up through the wilderness of Lycoming and after four days of wearisome marching through dense woods, swollen streams and climbing mountains, they reached Grover in this county. They came down the Towanda creek through LeRoy and West Franklin, then over the divide between Towanda and Sugar Creek to what is now Burlington where they saw the remains of an Indian camp.

Passing down Sugar Creek they went through Hemlock Run and went over the mountain to Athens. They destroyed everything in sight and captured all the cattle they could find. Coming back they passed Queen Esther's and Ulster and were followed by the Indians. At Wyalusing some 70 of the expedition took to canoes but at the top of the mountain Indians attacked the expedition and later more did but both parties were routed and Colonel Hartley did not make the mistake of chasing them into an ambuscade. Farther down a big party of Indians and Tories made an attack and the men in the boats heard the firing and came to the rescue of the expedition. The Indians and Tories were routed and at this point some three big muskets have been found, one of which is in possession of this historical society.

The expedition lasted some 15 days and demonstrated that it was possible to devastate the country and make it uninhabitable. This prepared the way for General Sullivan's expedition one year later. Mr. Craft's address was most heartily enjoyed by those present.

The next meeting of the society is the annual meeting. At Saturday's session Miss Charlotte Young sang a solo and Mrs. Frank Wood and Mr. Deming gave a duet, both of which were liberally applauded. Three new members Mr. and Mrs. Shaw and daughter of Ulster, were voted in.

Miss McKean Elected.

At a meeting of the school directors of the Towanda borough school district held on Tuesday night of last week Miss Eliza McKean was elected a teacher to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Miss Elizabeth Vincent. Miss McKean taught for a long period in the Towanda schools and her many friends will be pleased to see her among the teaching staff again.

Fine Automobile.

Percy L. Lang of Waverly has had brought to that place his fine 36-horse power Stearns touring car. He was accompanied from Buffalo by Dr. C. S. Means of this place, H. Clay Clapp of Waverly and George McKenzie, a Waverly newspaper man, came with the party from Elmira. The car is one of the finest made and has been thoroughly tested.

Miss Cox Won a Prize.

Miss Katherine B. Cox of Binghamton, a young lady who has relatives and many friends in Towanda, was one of two lucky persons to win a trip to the St. Louis exposition offered by the Binghamton Press. Miss Cox secured over 1,000 of the votes placed to her credit from Towanda.

A Dangerous Road.

Silas P. Chaffee of Black, had an unpleasant experience while driving to Towanda Thursday. His team became frightened at a passing train while in the narrows opposite town and ran away, demolishing the wagon, injuring the horses and throwing Mr. Chaffee out. He was uninjured.

Mrs. Carter Not Dead.

Base Ball Challenge.

Bernice has challenged Dushore to a series of ball games, one game to be played at Dushore, one at Bernice, and a third at Towanda should each team win a game.

NEW STOCK COMPANY.

Well-Known Towanda Hardware Firm to be Incorporated.

An application for a charter will be made to the court of common pleas of Bradford county on Sept. 17 for the "Dye and Bresee Hardware Company" of Towanda. The stockholders and directors of the company are A. D. Dye, C. J. Bresee, W. J. Bresee, Ella Bresee, Mattie Bresee and H. Kent Bresee. The officers are as follows: President, A. D. Dye; vice president, C. J. Bresee; secretary and treasurer, W. J. Bresee.

Since March, 1899, this well-known hardware firm has done business under the name of C. J. Bresee, Trustee. At that time an unfortunate circumstance placed the firm in a temporarily embarrassed financial position which the good business done by the firm did not warrant. The business was placed in a trustee's hand and the change to the old firm name has been for some time contemplated.

The firm name of Dye & Bresee have long been one of Towanda's widest known business houses whose reputation for honest dealings and strict integrity has been unquestioned. The return to the old name will be pleasant not only to the members of the house themselves, but to their legion of friends throughout the county.

NEW PROPRIETOR.

Mrs. M. A. Morse to Become Head of the Park Hotel.

As soon as the license can be transferred Mrs. M. A. Morris of this place is to become proprietress of the Park hotel in this place succeeding Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Lynch. Mrs. Morris is a sister of Mrs. George B. Shores of the Tidd House and is conversant with the needs of a first-class hotel. The Elwell estate which owns the hotel, will expend considerable money at once to repair, repaint, and lay new floors in the hotel building. It is probable that while the repairs are being made the hotel dining room will be closed and only the bar kept open for the accommodation of the public.

The improvements contemplated will make of the Park hotel the first class place that it was for many years. It will no doubt prove to be a popular and well patronized house. The cuisine is promised to be excellent. While Mr. Lynch has not fully decided on his future business it is probable that he will work at his old trade of boilermaker.

Mileage Tickets Honored.

Effective Sept. 1, the Susquehanna & New York Railroad Co. will accept New York Central mileage on all its passenger trains. This will be welcome news to travelers and serve to make still more attractive the popular and convenient new short line between Williamsport, Towanda, Canton, Troy, and Lehigh Valley points.

Death From Unusual Cause.

As the result of pulling a dead hair from his neck, D. Brainerd Luck of Binghamton, died on Monday of this week at the home of his parents at Binghamton. A small pimple appeared and this latter turned into a carbuncle. Finally general blood poisoning or septicaemia set in and Lusk died in great agony.

Interesting Articles Omitted.

Letter to Orin J. King.

Towanda. Pa.

Dear Sir: The handsome residence of Oliver Gildersleeve on Main street, Portland, Conn., was painted in 1888 with Devoe and again in 1901.

There's 13 years; there are hundreds of such; the difficulty is to hear of 'em.

Reminds of another. The Farrington residence, Rockland, Maine, was painted Devoe 21 years ago; the paint was in fair condition 5 years ago, when he saw it; don't know any more. Our agents there, Messrs. Ferrand, Spear & Co., know. Enclose a stamp, if you write 'em.

Yours truly,
F. W. Devoe & Co.
